

Mobile renal dialysis unit launched in NT

Posted Fri May 13, 2005 7:19am AEST

The Northern Territory Government will today officially open the country's first mobile renal dialysis unit.

The mobile unit will mean people with kidney disease can be on dialysis in their community rather than having to travel hundreds of kilometres to a major centre.

The $150,000 self-care unit will be moved across the Top End to where it is needed.

Kidney disease is prevalent throughout Indigenous communities and the Territory Government says there is a great need for such a facility.

The Northern Territory Deputy Chief Minister, Syd Stirling, will unveil the unit at Galiwinku in north-eastern Arnhem Land.
